Chas. H. Blim Seeks Nomination As County Judge

Announcement of Charles H. Blim, Joliet, as candidate before the Republican Primary in April for the office of County Judge of Will County, places before the voters one of the outstanding attorneys of the County, with experience in matters such as come before the County Court which is unequalled.

A native of Crete, Will County, Attorney Blim completed his law course at Northwestern College of Law in the most critical period of World War I. Volunteering for service in the signal corps, which during the late war developed into the aviation branch of the service, he served until the end of the war.

Returning to Will County he took up the practice of the legal profession. His training and ability won instant recognition and he was offered and accepted the position of First Assistant State's Attorney, which office he filled for three years under State's Attorney Wm. R. McCabe, being retained in the same capacity by the present incumbent, State's Attorney James E. Burke. He resigned February 1, 1945, to engage in private practice.

During his services in the State's Attorney's office, Mr. Blim was assigned to prosecution of all cases in the County Court, with especial attention to tax matters are all contested County Court cases, questions of the utmost importance to the taxpayers of Will County, which called for his appearance even in the United States Supreme Court. His successful record in this work has attracted wide attention.

Careful and close application to work in the County Court has given Attorney Blim experience which makes him especially valuable to the tax payers of Will County and marks him as an outstanding candidate for the Republican nomination for County Judge in the April primary.

In the recent test vote among leading Republicans of the County, seeking to express a choice of candidates to be drafted as the party choice in the primaries, Attorney Blim received highest commendation, 32 percent of the vote cast—leading as first choice by a large plurality. With announcement of his candidacy for the primary nomination as County Judge on the Republican ticket, pledges of support from party leaders in all parts of Will County promise Attorney Blim will be one of the strongest vote getters on the entire ticket.

Attorney Blim is married, residing with his wife and two daughters at 400 Whitney Ave., Joliet. Another daughter and son, recently discharged from the army, are in college. He has always shown a wide interest in all questions of civic betterment and well being, with the questions of public good always uppermost, qualifications well fitting him to preside in the County Court of Will County.

PMA SPEAKER WARNS AGAINST TREND OF COMMUNISM

"Communism is on the March" was the warning note sounded at the annual meeting of Local 13 of the PMA held Monday afternoon in the St. John Hall in Joliet.

Mr. Lauterbach, president of PMA in issuing this note of warning pointed out the threat to not only labor, but to agriculture in the tendency sweeping of the nation to embrace communism. He declared that the CIO is the worst of the radical elements. He roundly scored government subsidies being paid to farmers and pointed out that the ones advocating such payments are economists tinged with communism. He also severely criticized the New Deal's pet "Jimmy" Byrnes in making a flop of his dealings with Russia and said it was a most deplorable thing that the world's greatest nation should truckle to Joe Stalin in the manner done by Byrnes.

Mr. Lauterbach further showed that the common people of the United States had been lied to by both political parties in the last presidential campaign. He made it clear that now is the time for the small business man and the farmer to be allied closely together if they expect to get anywhere. Mr. Lauterbach gave a review of the past year in the milk business and showed that many important gains for the benefit of the dairyman have been made by PMA.

Other speakers addressing the several hundred dairymen at the meeting were John Brock, Will County Farm Adviser who gave a talk on soil conservation and breeding of more Holstein stock.

Mr. Alexander also of PMA gave a financial report and outlined a picture of the present milk situation and a prediction of future trends.

Moving pictures were also shown. The meeting was in charge of P. Tesdall, president of Local 13 of PMA.

The following officers were elected: President Dist. 13, P. Tesdall, Vice-President, T. Duncan Dibbel, Sec. Treasurer, A. C. Geuther, Chairman re-districting committee, Fred Wilhelm, Chairman Resolutions Committee, A. C. Geuther; alternate, Geo. Mager.

Dairymen were present from Orland, Tinley Park, Frankfort and Mokena in addition to various other parts of Will and Grundy counties.

Mrs. Armstrong said that when she left him, her father was apparently in good health. He told her that he intended to listen to the radio. When she returned she called to him, but hearing no response, she investigated and discovered him slumped down in the bathtub with the water running over his head.

The police and fire departments were called. Although firemen used the inhalator on the aged man for nearly an hour, he could not be revived. At first it was thought that Mr. Lauffer had either fainted or suffered a heart attack and then drowned, but Coroner Edwood A. Kingston performed an autopsy Wednesday morning and found the cause of death to be acute pulmonary oedema resulting from uremic poisoning. Mr. Lauffer had been under the care of a doctor for several years.

Born in Frankfort township, Mr. Lauffer had farmed in that section most of his life. Several years ago he moved to Joliet to live at the home of his daughter.

SELLING STEEL INCREASE

WASHINGTON. — Most of President Truman's appointments are very brief. Senators get five minutes with him. Congressmen get from 5 to 15 minutes. Cabinet members frequently get only 15 minutes.

So recently eyebrows went up when the White House bulletin board listed OPAdministrator Chester Bowles for a full hour with President Truman. Observers knew that the heat was on to increase the price of steel, and sell to inflation's No. 1 enemy on giving the nation its first big inflationary shot in the arm.

When Bowles entered the President's office, the die was already cast. Truman had decided that steel prices were going up. His job was to sell the idea to Bowles. Truman himself had been sold by his old friend, Reconversion Czar John Snyder of St. Louis, who in turn had been won and dined by the steel people in Pittsburgh.

Chester Bowles also had talked with big steel leaders. His talks were far more energetic, more persuasive than Snyder's. Bowles once ran one of the best advertising firms in the nation, is an excellent salesman. All his salesmanship was turned on big steel leaders.

"You are going to have a bigger margin of profit than you realize," he told them. "You are now working 44 hours in the mills and 52 hours in your captive mines. When you drop to 40 hours, you will net a big saving in overtime. The price of scrap iron is now at ceiling. It will drop in the spring, which means more saving. Production per man went up to 10 per cent after the last war. It will do the same after this war, which will save you 100 million dollars alone. You can't tell what your profits will be. So why not try out a new increased wage scale without a sharp price hike? Try it out for six months—then come back and we'll examine the whole question again. If you need a price increase then we'll give it to you."

Bowles is a persuasive talker. He has more charm than any Washingtonian since Franklin Roosevelt. But he made no impression.

"After the last war, steel wages soared even without union pressure," Bowles summarized. "So did prices. And once inflation gets going, you'll have labor coming back until they get, not a 30 per cent increase in wages, but 50 per cent or even 75 per cent. You can't tell where this thing will stop."

EUROPEAN REFUGEES
Some of Jimmy Byrnes' expeditors have really pepped up old-line state department diplomats when it comes to admitting European refugees.

When President Truman first proposed filling unused U. S. immigration quotas by admitting homeless refugees from Europe, state department diplomats said they had neither funds, nor the personnel—nor perhaps even the disposition.

However, some of the South Carolina blood which Byrnes has injected into the state department (men who drink coca-cola instead of tea) decided that Presidential orders should not be kissed off so airily.

Though no money was available, they finally went to the bureau of the budget and squeezed out enough cash money to hire new consular personnel. Already they have started flying supplies to Europe to set up special offices to screen refugees and give them visas.

Old-line diplomats are leaning back in amazement. They have never seen so much speed before.

THE MERRY-GO-ROUND

Last spring the department of agriculture quietly agreed to advance France 750,000 tons of sugar from the Cuban crop. French colonial crops at that time were down to practically nothing and even what we loaned the French permitted a per capita consumption of only 25 pounds annually, compared to our 64. This friendly move is paying off now, however; because under the terms of the agreement, practically the entire French West Indies crop for this year comes to us. It is somewhat larger than was anticipated, and current estimates are that we will receive about 900,000 tons. . . . Henry Morgenthau's boom on Germany, which appeared last fall, is not the only book the former secretary of the treasury will write. During his 12 years of close association with President Roosevelt, Morgenthau made painstaking notes on every conversation he had with FDR — and except for Harry Hopkins he probably had more than any other cabinet officer.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The radio time for Senator Taft's attack on Truman's address to the nation was reserved for him by the Republican national committee. . . . When Henry Kaiser signed his new contract with the auto workers, he remarked: "Dick Thomas (UAW president) is the man who came to the west coast last year and convinced me that I should take over the Willow Run plant and make automobiles. That puts the responsibility on his shoulders to see to it that I have the men to do the job."

Lesson for February 3

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

FEAST DAYS OF A PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 20:7, 8; 23:4-6, 15, 16, 24, 27, 28, 34, 39-44.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad.—Psalm 126:3.

God wants His people to enjoy their religious life. Being in fellowship with Him is not something to dampen one's spirits, but rather to give joy and enthusiasm full liberty. Even with Israel in those early days when Christ had not come and they had only the promises and types of His coming, He arranged for regular religious feasts or festivals which brought the people together to worship Him.

One can well imagine the delightful fellowship as friends, acquaintances and especially relatives from various places went up to the feast together. Personal joy was heightened by the great spiritual joy which they shared.

The obvious lesson for us is that we who know Christ and have peace and liberty in Him should enjoy our Christian anniversaries to the full in a manner well-pleasing to Him. We need such occasions to renew our faith, to quicken our joy, and to cause us to remember God's grace and His blessings.

The first of the assigned Scripture passages does not directly relate to the feasts of God's people but rather speaks of:

I. The Holiness of the Lord (Lev. 20:7, 8).

God is holy and His people in their earthly walk are to show that they have been sanctified by Him. This involves a separation from worldly practices and an eagerness to do the will of God.

Keeping the statutes of God should be the delight of His people, not a burden or a trial. There is real liberty in conformity to law. Holiness makes for freedom and fruitfulness.

Now we turn to the consideration of the feasts of the Lord. In selecting the verses, two of the feasts were omitted, so we shall include Leviticus 23:3, 9-12 with the others assigned.

II. The Feasts of the Lord (Lev. 23:3-6, 9-12, 15, 16, 24, 27, 28, 34, 39-44).

This is one of the great chapters of the book of Leviticus, presenting both practical and prophetic teaching. The holy "feasts" and the "set times" of Israel (which we shall consider under the one heading of "feasts") were for their spiritual instruction and edification, but they also reveal God's prophetic purpose for both Israel and the Church.

1. The Sabbath (v. 3). This is not strictly considered one of the feasts but a set time—a holy convocation to be held after six days of labor. It is the type of the rest that God has in mind for His people. (See Heb. 4:1-11.)

A word of admonition is in order regarding America's awful disrespect for and misuse of our day of rest—the Lord's day. Is it not time we did something about the desecration of Sunday?

2. The Passover and the Unleavened Bread (vv. 4-6). These could be considered separately but they are closely related. The Passover spoke of the Lamb of God who was to shed His blood on the cross, even as it pointed back to redemption by blood on that dark night in Egypt (Exod. 12:12, 13).

The unleavened bread speaks of holiness. This is not the result of "servile work" (v. 8), but a showing forth of faith in the offering by fire.

3. The Firstfruits (vv. 9-12). Just as the Lord was waved before the harvest, so Christ in His resurrection is the firstfruits of them that sleep in the grave. (See I Cor. 15:20-23.) Note that it was waved "on the morrow after the Sabbath" (v. 11) which is the resurrection morning—our Sunday. What a blessed thought!

4. Pentecost (vv. 15, 16). Fifty days after the feast of firstfruits came a new meal offering; two wave loaves are presented before the Lord. This new meal offering speaks of the believing people of Christ, and so it came to pass that it was on Pentecost that the Holy Spirit was poured out on the Church (Acts 2:1-4), just fifty days after the resurrection of Christ.

5. Trumpets (v. 24). This looks forward to the day when God shall call His people Israel in the latter days. This will bring them together for the great day of

6. Atonement (vv. 27, 28). On that day Christ shall take away the sin of His people (Zech. 13:1), and they shall be prepared for the crowning and joyous feast of

7. Tabernacles (vv. 34, 39-44). This was the great feast of ingathering of the products of the year. Israel then dwelt in booths to recall their days in the wilderness. It was a time of full rejoicing, when sorrow and crying were put away. It is the type of Israel's ultimate restoration and full blessing.

Such are the feasts of the Lord—delightful and faith-stimulating—for Israel and for us!

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WHO FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake and his wife, Arab, discovered evidence of a spy ring headed by a Mr. Jones. Followed to Andy's house by Jones' gang, Arab was taken prisoner. Andy escaped. He reported to the army and set out to find the gang. He was taken by two of the men to the Jersey coast. In crossing to a small island Andy managed to upset the boat. He swam ashore and entered the house, found Paula a prisoner and turned her loose. He was captured in the map room by Jones as he was trying to flash a message to a U. S. patrol offshore. They discovered that Paula was gone and that he had knocked Bill out. Joey went into the next room to get rope.

CHAPTER XVI

"A guy like you," he said, "ought to try a bow and arrow. Might make out better. I thought—hey, where'd you get this rod?"

"I met a fellow wasn't using it." "Hey, Chief," Joey said. "Isn't this—"

"I believe it is," Plain Mr. Jones said. "Study that piece of firewood the lieutenant kindly brought in for us, and see if it tells you anything."

Joey picked up the club. "I don't get you, Chief," he complained. "What's this got to do with... ohhh, he smacked somebody with this!"

"Bill was always careless," the fat man said.

"Was?" Joey cried. "You mean this paragraph trooper knocked off Bill? I better look!"

"We have more urgent work here," the fat man said. "Of course he knocked off Bill. Otherwise Bill would have seen his sandy footprints downstairs as we saw them in the hall. They would have been even plainer downstairs. I do not like sand tracked into the house."

"I'm willing to track it out again," I said.

"The only tracks you'll make out of here," Joey snarled, "will be with the backs of your heels. Look, Chief, Bill may be croaking. Can't I go look?"

"Either he is dead or not dead. Whichever it is, he would be of little use tonight, I think. It is only to-night which interests me. Get the extra rope from the Thompson girl's room."

Joey went out grumbling, and the fat man said, "Sit down in the straight wooden chair, Lieutenant." I did as I was told. It meant turning my back to him, though, and facing the windows. My neck muscles twitched under my linked fingers. A spine couldn't be much tougher than those sticks he liked to break. But it was no time for diving into a lead shower bath. I had already oversubscribed my quota of boners for the evening. Things weren't completely hopeless. The telegram I had left at the roadside stand might bring results. Of course the telegram had merely stated, HEADED NEW JERSEY, and that wouldn't be enough to bring help to this tiny island. But it would concentrate attention on Jersey—attention which might come in handy when Plain Mr. Jones began trying to get a message out.

Joey rushed back into the room, babbling, "Paula's gone! She's gone! This guy must have got her away!" "Of course she is gone," the fat man said. "The sandy tracks showed he went in there. Did you bring the rope?"

"Yeah, sure, but we got to get that dame!"

"How many women do you want at one time?"

"It's not that so much, Chief, but she can't have gone far and we'll pick her up."

"I'm afraid you're through dating her," I said. "I told her to climb into the garvey and shove off into the bay."

"Now it's the garvey!" Joey cried. "Next to this guy gremlins are Boy Scouts! What if they got the joint surrounded? What if—"

"Less talk," the fat man said. "Tie him in the chair. I will spell things out for you."

Joey yanked my hands down behind me. Cord scorched across my wrists. The fat man said, "He came here with no gun of his own, no flashlight, no shoes or coat or shirt. He was sending a silly V-for-Victory with the lamp. That means that he swam ashore and that there was no plan. If there were others, if there were a plan, we would be prisoners by now. I could almost guess how he came here."

"Yeah, Chief? How?"

"Will the lieutenant tell us?"

"Why not?" I said. "I didn't get shot in that cellar. I just pretended to be shot."

"Where did all the blood come from?"

"That was easy. I gave myself a nosebleed. But then you crossed me up by slugging me. I came to and waited a while to be on the safe side. I either waited too long or not long enough. I walked outside right into two of your gorillas."

"Too long, I believe. They must have returned. Their names?"

"The introduction was kind of fast. I didn't catch the names. Both were big square-faced guys. They brought me here."

Joey finished trying to saw through my wrists, looped rope around my chest. "I don't go for that stuff, Chief," he said. "If they brought him, where are they? Where—"

The rope went slack, suddenly. "Where are they?" Joey screamed. "Where are they?" The rope jerked up to my throat, tightened.

"Raeder!"

The rope loosened. "Yeah, Chief, yeah, only—"

"Get on with your work!"

"We started across the inlet in a sailboat. I gave them a swimming lesson. They didn't pass."

Joey was working on my ankles and I could feel him shudder. "That makes three good boys he's knocked off," he muttered.

"Not good boys," the fat man said. "Not even fair. They thought with their biceps. It is necessary to think with the biceps and with the head. As I do." Joey grumbled something, and the fat man kicked him and screamed, "As I do, pig! Did you hear me?"

Joey tumbled backward. "Yeah, Chief, sure," he stammered. "You got everything. You're the champ."

The fat man nodded, calmed. "Biceps are merely tools," he said. "It is not enough to use force only, the way our stupid Prussian generals and admirals do. The head must not give the biceps too much to do. The head must turn the enemy's strength against himself. As Himmeler and I turn America's strength against herself. Big, strong, stupid America, boasting of her power. I turn the boasts, the loose talk, the bragging against her..."

The voice faded away and he stood motionless. I could almost have

"Germany can still win but there is no time to lose."

sworn he had hypnotized himself. Joey crept back and finished tying my ankles.

"O. K., Chief," Joey said. The fat man didn't answer.

"Chief," Joey said anxiously, "don't get one of those spells. We got no time to lose."

The fat man spoke sharply, shrilly, to somebody in his dream world. "No time to lose," he echoed. "Germany can still win but there is no time to lose. Give us the Wehrmacht and the Luftwaffe and the Navy, and we will give you the world! But it must be at once! Kill that Schwein Canaris and Goering and the stupid generals and the others who hate us. Call on us! Call on the Gestapo to save—"

"Chief! Chief!" Joey cried. The fat man shook himself. The blind glasses swiveled slowly toward Joey. "Yes?"

"Chief, you're getting in one of those fits again. You started talking about Canaris and the others and you worked yourself up. And it's late. It's nearly eleven. You got to be on the ball for the contact."

The fat man was wide awake now. He polished his china-bowl head with plump fingers, and said, "Bring down Renee and the blonde girl. We still have a half-hour before the contact. Talking will pass the time."

Joey went out obediently, and the fat man continued, "You have caused much trouble, Lieutenant."

"Yeah," I admitted. "It looks as if I haven't much hope of winning an Iron Cross."

"Much trouble. I do not understand it. You are not very intelligent. You are not strong."

"Sure, I'm just a sub on the junior varsity. Think what our first team will do to you babies."

"Your first team," he said, "is on its way across now. But it will never land in North Africa—not after my report reaches the High Command. What you have done will have no effect on that. But you have destroyed my usefulness here. I will have to start back to Germany. Tonight."

"When you get back," I said, "tell them to start learning how to make apple pie and ice-cream sodas. There's going to be a big demand—"

"Lieutenant!"

"Hmmm?"

"I do not like some forms of your American humor. I am leading up to something serious. There is little room for passengers on a U-boat. I will be aboard, and Renee and Joey. There might be room for two more, if—"

Footsteps sounded in the hallway, and someone gasped and ran across the room behind me. A shawl of bright hair tumbled over my face and Arab was laughing and crying and her lips trembled against mine.

"Andy," she sobbed. "Andy, they told me they shot you. Andy, are you all right? Are you hurt?"

"Sure," I said, "sure I'm all right. Nothing wrong but the recurrence of an old paralysis of the brain. Are you O. K.?"

A hand grabbed her shoulder, wrenched her away. It was Joey, and he growled at her, "If you wanna see Jack here messed up, just make another pass at him. Sit down!" He jammed her into another chair.

The fat man laughed. It was like the gurgling of water in drainpipes. "Joey has trouble with his women," he said. "He has to keep them tied up or they run to other men. I do not find myself troubled that way. Do I, Renee?"

"I have never given you any trouble," she said faintly. "Why should I? You know how much I love you. Don't you? Don't you?"

He patted her cheek. "Yes, of course. Are you glad to see the lieutenant?"

"No. Why should I be?"

"He has been telling me what happened in the cellar. Just imagine, he fooled us into thinking he was dead!"

Her body trembled. She pressed herself against him, and whispered, "Why are we talking about him?"

"I thought you might be interested. You were there."

"There was so much noise and I fainted and I do not remember what happened very well."

"It would be amusing to have you try to remember. Then I could compare your story with his."

"What... what did he say?"

He laughed softly. "We will discuss it some other time. It will be entertaining. Sit down and rest, Renee. You look tired. You have been doing too much. You are always doing too much for people. You are too kindhearted."

She crumpled into a chair. The fat man touched her glowing black hair, caressed her bowed neck. He suspected that Renee had helped me to get out of the cellar alive but he wasn't going to do anything about it.

Not yet, anyway. He was going to save the subject for an idle moment which might be enlivened by a little mental torture. He didn't want love from her. He wanted obedience and terror.

Joey had finished lashing Arab's ankles together. Now his hands slid up her slim legs and he began tying knots very slowly and elaborately above the knees. His blue eyes were smoky; a vein squirmed on his forehead. A curl of his yellow hair flopped down on his face and clung damply. It was like watching a high priest, preparing a girl for strange pagan rites. I tried not to think of Paula Thompson's helpless body.

Arab's dark blue dress and white linen collar were smudged and wrinkled, but she sat there looking oddly demure. She made me think of kids at high-school graduations: feet and knees pressed primly together, soft blonde hair escaping from a little-girl ribbon, hands in long white gloves crossed on her lap... but they were not gloves. Her hands had been wrapped in adhesive tape and her wrists had been crossed and taped. She couldn't wiggle anything but her thumbs.

"What happened to your hands?" I asked.

She looked at them, tried to push her skirt down. "They kept getting in people's hair," she said.

Joey complained, "I got fed up with her slipping outta ropes and scratching and slapping. I bet that Venus de Mille went over big in her day. No hands at all."

"We'll get you a show-window dummy," I said. "You could make real time with one of those."

My wife said, "Andy, you didn't bring the U. S. Cavalry. I wish you wouldn't be so absent-minded."

Joey said, "He's got a rope tied around his finger to help him remember next time."

"Andy," she said, "is there a chance?"

I shook my head. It would be tough on her not to be able to hope for anything, but I couldn't risk a hint; Plain Mr. Jones was too clever with loose talk. Any chance we had of getting away would be washed out if he became suspicious.

"I'm afraid we're tagged out," I said. "Two of the gang were bringing me here and I coaxed them in for a swim... but then I pulled a skull and left sandy tracks all over the house. Paula Thompson got away, though. She took the garvey. She can't run it but she could pole across most of the bay."

"That's good. Now Joey hasn't anybody he can bully, have you, Joey?"

"I'm doin' O. K. You'll learn to be a lady, sister."

The fat man said, "She will have to learn quickly. In a few hours we will be on our way to Europe."

"On a sub?" Joey asked. "Look, Chief, those things got a habit of dunkin' themselves three times and coming up twice. And I'm just beginning to get friendly with the dame here."

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Freezing Army Points

This office has received many letters asking whether or not once men get overseas their accumulation of discharge points stops. The answer from the war department invariably has been that men continue to earn discharge points so long as they are in service.

This question was brought to a head recently when Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson was surprised when informed by the army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, that point scoring stopped September 2.

The war department now declares that both are right. Men in service do continue to earn discharge points for their record for use when and if a new freezing date is established. They point out that the first freeze date was May 12 when the total for discharge was 85 points. A new freeze date was established for September 2 when the discharge point total was 70. However, since September 2, the war department has reduced the point score to 50, or 20 points down, which is more than the veteran would accumulate in the four-month period. In other words, while the veteran total is figured at the number of points he had accumulated up to September 2, 1945, his point total had been lowered since that date from 70 to 50, making all who had 50 points on September 2 eligible for discharge.

Further lowering of the total points necessary for discharge are promised.

Questions and Answers

Q. Here's a question I've never seen or heard of being directly answered. Are there answers, or just evasive replies? Can the boys in service in Japan take up correspondence work or study in the U.S.A.F.I. if they have the time or ability? Our son is stationed in Osaka with a medical company. He wants to get started in a veterinarian course. Will be watching closely for an answer.—Mrs. A. J. W., Neligh, Nebr.

A. Yes, men in Japan can take certain courses of study with the U.S.A.F.I. However, it is doubtful if such a specialized course as veterinary could be taken by correspondence. Would suggest that your son take the matter up with his company commander.

Q. Is the widow of a World War I veteran, now receiving a pension, entitled to any additional benefits above her pension for doctor's care if she is an invalid?—Mrs. G. H., Eureka Springs, Ark.

A. No, the veterans' administration says that only in some instances of advanced age are widows of World War I veterans entitled to increase in pension.

Q. My husband enlisted in the air corps in August, 1944, for the duration and six months. He is now overseas. Will he be discharged when his enlistment period is up or must he wait until he has enough points?—Mrs. R. S., Sunbury, Pa.

A. The war is not yet over and will not be until so proclaimed by the President or congress. He will remain in the service until he earns sufficient points.

Q. My husband has been in service since August 2, 1945. I am in very bad health. We have two small children and expecting another one soon. Do you think I stand a chance of getting him out?—Mrs. J. R. B., Flat Lick, Ky.

A. I am afraid you stand little chance at the moment. When the third child is born, he will be eligible to make application for discharge.

Q. I was inducted into the army August 20, 1942. I received my honorable discharge May 10, 1943. Am I entitled to the $200 mustering-out pay? All my service has been in the U. S. A. How do I go about getting it?—A. W., Scotland, S. D.

A. Yes. The war department advises that you write to the Chief of Finance, Enlisted Personnel, War department, Washington, D. C.

Q. I have a friend in the navy. He has been in service since July, 1944, and overseas since last October, 1944. He is single and 20 years old. How many points does he have?—Miss B. C., Section, Ala.

A. As of January 1 he has 27 points. Thirty-six are necessary for discharge, 35 on February 1.

Q. I have a son who has been in service since December 13, 1944. He has six dependents, his mother, three brothers, two sisters. Is he eligible for discharge?—Mrs. G. E. P., Scottsville, Va.

A. Only minor children of the veteran are regarded as dependents in earning discharge points. It is possible for him, however, to file application for a discharge if he can make out a hardship case. He will lose his mustering-out pay, however. About his bonds, write to War Bond division, U. S. army, 4300 Goodfellow blvd., St. Louis 20, Mo.

China's Future

China is looking forward to rapid postwar industrialization with the emphasis on heavy industries—power plants, chemicals, railway and highway transportation, aviation and port facilities. Partially as a result of a shortage of private industrial capital and the absence of a vigorous industrial class, industrialization will proceed under state guidance and to a large extent under state ownership and direction, it is believed.

Interesting Ornamental

The Cyclamen, an interesting Christmas ornamental, originating in Mediterranean countries, requires a cool, moist situation, and plenty of sunlight. If temperatures do not exceed 50 degrees F. at night the plant will thrive in the average home. As soon as the flowers fade they should be plucked. These plants should be watered well each day.

Wolf Month

The month of January was named for the two-faced Roman god Janus, with the idea that he could look backward into the past year and forward into the coming year. The Anglo-Saxons called January the wolf-month, because at that season hunger made the wolves bold enough to invade the villages.

Orange Juice

Preparing orange juice the night before to save time at breakfast is approved by chemists at the department of agriculture. They found little if any loss of vitamin C. However, the orange juice should be kept covered in the refrigerator.

Children's Eyes

Generally a child does not know when he has poor vision. Even if he cannot see the board well, or if his eyes tire quickly when reading, he does not realize that his eyes need attention.

Lungfishes Await Rain

Lungfishes have eyes with pupils that do not change in size. These fishes live on the bottom of swamps and in time of drouth they burrow in the mud, plaster over the opening and wait for the rains.

Thirty Per Cent Milk Sold as Fluid
In this country the cattle herds produce about 50 billion quarts of milk a year. Of this about 30 per cent is sold as fluid milk and about 4.5 per cent is canned.

Shooting Stars

Shooting stars don't have tails. The light in their wake persists for a fraction of a second on the retina of the eye, causing the illusion of a tail. Similarly, tracer bullets seem to have tails of light.

Stainless Steel Pans

Stainless steel does not darken in cooking alkaline foods as aluminum does, but once darkened by overheating or scorching, it cannot be brightened as aluminum can.

Planning Meals

A map drawn to indicate the location of foods in the home freezer, helps a hasty meal planner to lay her hand on the right box at the right time.

Eye Accidents

More than 2,000 eyes are lost in industrial accidents annually. About one-third of a million eye accidents incapacitate workers for one or more days.

Better Pans

Pans with flat bottoms are sturdier, heat faster and are more economical of fuel on electric, coal or wood ranges.

Hero Color-Blind

John Paul Jones, famous U. S. naval officer, was color-blind. Many men, but few women, have the shortcoming.

Uses of Peanut

Peanuts are now being manufactured into meal and flour, as well as salad oil, oleomargarine, peanut butter and candy.

Good quality freshly dried eggs have practically the same value as shell eggs, as they contain vitamin A and D protein. They also have thiamin and riboflavin, two of the B vitamins needed to keep the body running smoothly. They are available as either the whole egg or separated into yolks and white, and they are economical since one can measure less than one egg when only a small amount is needed.

Dust Removal

Various kinds of brushes are needed for dust removal. The toilet bowl brush is more sanitary if the fibers are twisted in wire rather than bound in a tight head. Wash, rinse and shake after use. Hang with brush end down. Fiber scrub brushes should be tufted close to the edge to clean corners. Wash, rinse and shake after use. Dry with bristles down.

Electric Lighting

In 1940, 84 per cent of our population lived in electrically lighted houses. Of the homes wired for electricity by the end of that year, 99 per cent had electric irons, 63 per cent refrigerators, 54 per cent clocks, 49 per cent vacuum cleaners and 35 per cent coffee percolators.

Whole Cotton

Scientists at the University of North Carolina are experimenting with the whole cotton plant as a cheap source of cellulose for making paper and rayon. The plant is cut just above the ground; the oil is removed first, and what is left is processed for cellulose.

Soviet Automobile

Reports from Russia reveal that one of its engineers has developed an automobile without a gasoline motor. It picks up its power from wires imbedded below the surface of the road. There is no direct contact between the car and the wires.

Suffered Failing Vision

Like most persons in middle age, Abraham Lincoln was troubled with failing vision in his forties. He obtained his first glasses the day before he delivered his famous "Lost Speech."

Food Changes

Changes in the food picture sure to come are pre-packaging of fresh fruits and vegetables, more pre-packaging of fresh meats, and better and more effective packages generally.

Farms Electrified

Previous to the war, 85 per cent of the farms in Denmark were using electricity, and 90 per cent in Germany, 95 per cent in France and practically 100 per cent in Holland were electrified.

Fill Reservoirs

Erosion from cuts along highways and in roadside ditches is a common source of the soil that fills reservoirs and reduces storage capacity.

Egg Hatchability

Scientists have tested the effect of airplane transportation on the hatchability of eggs and found they could be carried 5,000 miles or more without severe loss.

Nutritive Value

The nutritive value of a food is measured by the extent to which it will satisfy an animal's daily needs for each of the various dietary essentials.

Why Girls Tend Switchboard

In the early days switchboard operators were boys, replaced later by girls, because "girls are steadier and do not drink beer," a history of the telephone industry shows.

Bright Onions

Buy onions that are bright, clean, hard, well-shaped and dry-skinned, and store them in a cool dark place.

Spots Enemies

The woodcock has eyes set far back in its head so that it can see

IN MEMORIAM

CARRIE CAPPEL HURLEY—In loving memory of our daughter and sister who passed away 13 years ago Feb. 4. The sun and moon is shining,
On a lonely, silent grave,
Beneath lies one we dearly love,
But whom we could not save.

We think of her at morning, when the sun comes up so bright;
We think of her at evening, when God's candles light the night
The angels hear us whisper her name in every prayer.
MOTHER, RUTH AND WALTER

The Bankers are proving to be the classiest team in the league, as they stepped out in front by one game by winning three games from the once powerful Oilers. They now have a winning streak of six straight games. The slumping Smokers, the lucky stiffs, were given two games from the most generous Robins. But still Gus is fretting as the Smokers tumbled out of the lead.

The V-Eighters took two games from the Paperhangers and moved up to 4th place in the standing.

Hamilton rolled a 235 game which is high game so far this season.

Mokena Women's Service Club

Mokena, Illinois,

Dear Ladies:-

Just arrived at Japan a few days ago after repatriating over eight hundred Japanese prisoners of War who were originally stationed on the Fortress Island of Truk, to their home Island.

It was upon our arrival that we received our first mail in three weeks and amongst the numerous letters I received accumulation of three weeks mail, there was one piece of mail from your club. Enclosed inside the very nice Christmas card I found the money order for which I want to thank you. Have decided to put it to an appropriate use and use the money to buy stamps for the letters that I mail home. Can't think of any better way to use it.

Our ship is to be de-commissioned within the next two weeks so it won't be long before I will have a new address. Upon de-commissioning the ship will be taken over by the Jap Navy to be used for repatriation purposes until such time that all their forces on the various islands in the Pacific are returned to their homeland. Then, the ship will be returned to our navy to be taken back to the states for its final de-commissioning.

All the members of our crew who have enough points for discharge will be sent back to the states. Those who do not have quite enough points will return to the states to serve the rest of their time in the navy. We unfortunate low point men will either be transferred to the Seventh Flt. or to some of the newer LST's that are still in good shape. Only those PST's in this area which are numbered under 600 will be de-commissioned. Yesterday we began work stripping the ship of all equipment of value to our navy. When the work of stripping the ship is completed all the equipment will be transferred to a freighter to be carried as cargo back to the states where it will be used on other ships or possibly on some naval station. After we have finished with our task of stripping this ship it is rumored that we are to get some liberty in Tokyo. We are only a short distance from the city so it is quite possible that we will see some liberty there. Time is pressing so I had better close. Sincerely, George A. Rinke

P. S. Thanks again for everything.

ORLAND PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beagley and Joyce attended a party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Uthe in Tinley Park in honor of their 19th Wedding anniversary, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Marti of Mokena visited Saturday evening with the W. T. Beagley family.

Little Alan Creer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Creer, is ill in his home with a cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yunker attended the wedding of their niece Miss Evelyn Schult in Mokena Sunday. The groom, Mr. Earl Moss, recently discharged from the army, was a former milk tester in the Orland Park territory.

Miss Madeline Wolf and Mrs. Arthur Beagley visited with Mrs. Helen Scheer in Mokena Monday afternoon.

Kenneth Yunker, son of Mr. Ed Yunker, underwent a major operation in Silver Cross hospital last Thursday, and is getting along fine.

Capt. Vincent Kriemier of Joliet, Mrs. Alma Beagley and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Englehardt of Tinley Park visited Sunday afternoon at the Arthur Beagley home. While they were there Arthur Beagley, Jr., Ship's cook 3-c called from Long Beach, Cal. saying he was expecting to be discharged in 60 days.

SERVICEMEN'S LETTERS

Mrs. H. Kruspe, Chairman.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:
Just a few lines to thank you for the Christmas package and to let you know that I am now in the third Cavalry Ren. Sq. I am thinking about re-enlisting for a year, so if I do, I'll let you know immediately. Thanks again for the package.

As Ever,

Bob Miller

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:
I received the Christmas package a couple of days ago. We ate the fruit cake between here and Peru. The Co. pilot, radio operator and engineer, all helped.

Ray M. Glahn

January 14, 1946.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

The Orland Park Herald has been arriving regularly and again I wish to express my appreciation to you and Mr. Semmler for the news of the old home town being brought here to Washington. It certainly brings great pleasure when one is away from home, and express my thanks for making it possible.

Also I received your Christmas package, and even though I was able to be home for a few days on the Christmas week end, I enjoyed it's contents during the holiday season. The food was delicious and the other many useful articles surely were nice. I also wish to thank you and all others who contribute toward this useful activity. Even though the war is over, it is grand to know that you think of us who are still in the service.

I am still going to school out here and expect to graduate in March. We are studying radar and is proving to be quite interesting. Most of us expect to go out to sea when we graduate, for a little while anyway, as we don't have enough points for a discharge yet, but hope it won't be very far off.

I have a little change in address as I have been promoted to Electronics Technicians Mate third class and also the class number is different, so would appreciate it if you will note it as the mail arrives a little sooner.

Sincerely,
Gordon Cooper.

Never The Twain Shall Meet

Regardless of whether the majority of people approve or disapprove of existing proposals for this country to adopt state medicine, whereby the Federal government would become the final authority in medical care, one great objection to the proposal cannot be overlooked. State medicine is opposed by the medical profession. If it is pushed down the throats of the doctors against their will, it cannot help but result in lowered medical standards. As one Veterans' Administration authority has pointed out in urging cooperation between that agency and the medical profession: "You can't push a good doctor into anything; he must come in because he wants to be of service. And that's the only kind of a doctor we want."

If this is true of the Veterans' Administration, it is most certainly true of a nationwide medical system. Unless the system is supported in the hearts of the doctors who must work under it, it is doomed to failure.

Medical men have just one objective, the highest possible health standards. They will subscribe wholeheartedly to any program that they feel will bring their objective nearer. They do not feel that the goal can be reached by subjecting medicine to the control of government. Government interference has for centuries blocked the scientific and cultural progress of mankind. There is no reason to believe that such interference would bring any happier results now. For this reason alone, the medical profession can never be expected to support socialized medicine, and socialized medicine can never succeed, even in theory, without its support.

Killing the "Outlet Octopus"

Our hero has the right idea . . . the "Outlet Octopus" has to go . . . but the solution isn't the axe—it's adequate wiring.

Maybe yours is still just a baby Octopus . . . but it'll grow unless your wiring is adequate. Not only are "double plugs on double plugs" unsightly but they are also dangerous. Think of those little wires behind the plug, they just aren't built to carry such a load.

Avoid slow heating and inefficiently operating appliances. Adequate wiring means no more dimming lights . . . no more "Outlet Octopuses." You'll have plenty of convenience outlets . . . and no more "steps in the dark"—multiple switches will light your way ahead.

In your present or future home, plan to have adequate wiring so your new electric appliances will serve you better. Talk over adequate wiring with us or your electrical contractor today.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Erlene Conel

"Flash Hero". Sixteen year old Russell Price Jr. can hold his own with any Superman! With his three cell flashlight he flagged five Royal Canadian Air Force Planes to a safe emergency landing during a snowstorm. One night last week, from his home, he heard planes flying low, and sprinted to a nearby field. He turned his flashlight on a large tree, preventing the pilots from smashing into it, then guided the planes in.

Check Points. On World Airlines they are considering calling hostesses, pursers. England describes their sparkle by naming them Star Girls. If you're in your home with the radio off, don't think you're hearing spooks if a voice starts reeling off a commercial. Certain advertisers are now using planes with loudspeakers. The first trans-U. S. phone call had it's 31st birthday on January 25th. At the start only ten miles of circuit was underground. The CAA recommends that Right Quick all communication lines near airports be grounded, and in ten years every communication line be out of the way of planes. "Moonstruck" is more than a romantic phrase now that Radar rays have reached that planet.

Land of the Unusual! Seventy five miles from civilization on the shores of Lake Muroc in the Mojave Desert strange events are taking place. The old saying, that everything has been done before is disproved almost every day. Lake Muroc, a hard, dry, barren stretch of desert 12 by 8 miles square, serves as a landing field to test anything that flies: flying wings, rockets, robot bombs and pilotless planes. Airmen know the field as the testing ground of the jet Consolidated Vultee P-81 and the P-80 Shooting Star. The top speed of the Vultee P-81 is given as over 500 miles an hour, and engineers say the P-80 is much faster!

A Slick Chick Flies High: My friend, Helen Olson has just been appointed director of the new women's division of the United Air Lines. A former railroad stewardess and a counter sales agent for the air lines, Helen will supervise the promotion of air travel by women for business or pleasure. So, gals, when ever you travel, you may contact her and she will see to it that you wing your way most enjoyably!

Cold Candy. Last week our gal student, Candy, was told that next she'd learn airport traffic pattern. So this week, despite zero temperature, there she was in the flight office, bright as a prop in sunshine. Her instructor took one look at her costume and shivered. He told her zero weather is smooth for flying, if you're dressed for it, which Candy wasn't.

We watched as the plane took off into the wind and climbed until it reached 400' altitude. Then it made a 90 degree turn to the left, crabbing into the wind. After reaching 500' altitude another 90 degree turn was made to the left which brought the plane down wind, paralleling the runway. At 600' altitude, opposite the landing circle, the throttle was cut and the plane glided downwind until it was just over 200' high and then another 90 degree left turn was made lining the plane up with runway, heading into the wind, toward the landing circle. The landing was "Rodger", and we watched another take-off and repeat of the same maneuver. By this time we knew by the imperfection of the pattern flown that Candy had the controls.

After 20 minutes of flying patterns they landed and Candy made one dash for the flight office and stove. After advice on how to dress for winter weather and having boots, a parka and heavy gloves loaned by friendly flyers, Candy went up to finish her lesson. Next week, Candy learns plane takeoff procedure.

Airport News. Prosperi Airport has two new Cub trainers. At Chicago-Hammond Airport, Harriet Drake in the Flight Office told me that while the new buildings are going up, and the old ones being remodeled, the office is moving into the Clubhouse of the Women Flyers of America. That's all for now.

THIS OPERATOR MUST HAVE LIVED ON A FARM

Telephone strike or no telephone strike, somebody's gotta milk the cows.

There's a certain telephone operator in Jacksonville, Fla., who is in complete agreement, according to Everett Mitchell on the Voice of the Dairy Farmer (NBC, Sundays, 12:00 noon CST). The operator received a call from a dairy official who wanted to phone a newspaper to insert a help wanted ad. She informed him that due to a work stoppage, only emergency calls were being handled.

"But," said the Dairyman, "this is an emergency, the cows have to be milked."

The call went through.

He Hit The Deck

By M.S.

I often wondered, when looking at a picture of an airplane carrier, how the pilots and their planes ever take off and land on them, and in the middle of the ocean, where in case they might not make it on landing, there was no solid earth to hold them. They just had that large body of water 40 feet below, and weighted down by their plane, the chances are not good.

On inquiry, I have found out that the percentage of pilots who pass the test for that type of service is very small. And that is what Harold Morlock of Orland Park did when he was in active service.

Harold enlisted as an aviation cadet, seaman second class, June 16, 1942 and remained on inactive duty until October 16, 1942 when he was sent to pre-flight school at Iowa City, Iowa. He remained there until January 1, 1943, when he was transferred to the air station at Glenview, Ill., where he started flying the Naval Yellow Perils. On April 3 he was sent to Corpus Christi, Texas for advanced flight training. It was July 28, 1943 when he received his wings and commission of Lieutenant, junior grade. July 28, 1943 he was sent to Melbourne, Florida for operational training in fighter planes.

A word about these fighter planes might not be amiss. The only occupant in this kind of a plane is the pilot. He has to pilot his plane, handle the guns or whatever is needed. He just digs in where there is a fight and fights. No one there to help him or give him aid or advise, unless it would be recognition of the Supreme Power which surely did aid the fighting boys. This was the training for which Harold remembered Melbourne, but that is not all, for while in that city, he chanced one day to meet a lovely young lady, Miss Mary Brooks Ashley, who later was to be Mrs. Morlock. It was Oct. 1, 1943 Lt. Morlock and Miss Ashley were united in marriage in the Methodist church of that city, by a Chaplain of the Navy, Howard V. Sattel.

So it was Lt. and Mrs. Morlock who left Melbourne Oct. 15, 1943 and after a 15 day leave, during which time they came to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Morlock in Orland Park, he reported ed to the Glenview, Ill. Naval Air Station to be tested for a Carrier vessel. It really was an achievement when he passed the test, for few do. Then Lt. and Mrs. Morlock went by train to San Diego, Cal. and on Nov. 10, 1943 he flew to the Hawaiian Islands and Mrs. Morlock worked for an Aircraft company in San Diego, until his return.

Lt. Morlock was assigned as a flight-er pilot to the Carrier Cowpens. He took part in 8 major engagements, had 300 combat hours, and altogether 11,000 flying hours. This really is some record. This action was in the Marshall Gilbert area, Putien, The Marianas and Iwo Jima. In the Navy the term missions is not used, but combat hours, and those 300 combat hours would be many missions if that term were used.

While on the Cowpens, in order to create more interest for the boys, Harold had a bright thought one day to start a newspaper for the ship as there was none, on this carrier. Permission was readily granted by the captain, Harold was editor, publisher in other words, "the whole works". He named the paper, "The Mighty Moo". It was a mimeograph, had sheet, and each issue was hungrily digested by every one on board, even to the captain. Harold interviewed, the boys and got many interesting stories in that way. An especially interesting story, was the one resulting from interviewing the captain. After Harold came home, others took up that work and the publishing each week of "The Mighty Moo" has continued since.

Many are the experiences of these flying men. Harold had two planes shot up a lot, but never had the engines hit; once he lost a wing but made a safe landing back to his carrier, even tho the plane could not be used again. Another time he helped search for a pilot who was shot down. He sighted him once. The lost pilot spent eleven days in a life raft, during which time he had but one cup of water which was in his raft, and he caught two fish which he ate. He was rescued by a battle ship.

Then the longed for day arrived and in Aug. 1944 Lt. Morlock returned to the states where he was an instructor at Corpus Christi, Texas until he was released to inactive duty on Dec. 12, 1945. Mrs. Morlock lived with her husband in Texas and they returned together to Orland Park.

Harold wore the Asiatic Pacific ribbon with four stars, the American Theatre ribbon and Victory medal and is cited for the Presidential Citation Air Medal.

Harold was graduated from the School of Journalism of the University of Illinois, in 1942 and is now employed by the South Town Economist in Chicago in the Editorial department, and we are sure he will be successful in this field of endeavor.

The self-lifting tractor is now a reality. It rises any height, up to four inches, virtually drawing itself up "by its own bootstraps." The lifting operation is accomplished by placing light tubular frames beneath the axles, connecting the rear to the two arms of a Ford-Ferguson tractor's hydraulic linkage and lightly touching the "finger-tip control" lever which is one feature of the Ferguson System. ### Exceedingly Important On the Percentage Basis

The lumber camp foreman received orders from headquarters to make certain changes in his monthly report. Among other things, he was told that all figures must be expressed in terms of percentages.

There had been bitter complaints concerning the food served by the camp's cook, and finally two attractive women were dispatched by headquarters to take his place.

The next month's report to headquarters read in part as follows: "There has been an important development at camp. Last week 2 per cent of the men married 100 per cent of the cooks."

FEW would ever have thought, a few years ago, that the time would come when pro golfers would head the pack at the pay-check window.

But this strange event has taken place. Byron Nelson finished 1945 beyond the $60,000 mark while Hogan, McSpaden and Snead were somewhere in the neighborhood of $25,000 and $30,000.

I doubt there was any $25,000 ball player last season. Hank Greenberg came back at his old salary around $55,000, but Hank only played half the campaign. DiMaggio, another high-priced star, didn't get in at all. Such stars as Marty Marion and the Cooper Brothers were in the $13,000 class. I don't know how much Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout pulled in, but I doubt that it was over $25,000, if that much.

But there was no ball player who made anything like the amount Byron Nelson made from competition, and this doesn't include his income from other sources.

Few professional football players draw as much as $5,000 a season. Before the new league barged in anything from $250 to $300 a game was good pay for all except such outstanding stars as Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman and Don Hutson.

Players Will Profit

It will, of course, be different with the new All-America Conference league shopping in the market.

The arrival of the new league will be tough on the bank accounts of club owners in both circuits, but it will be a big financial harvest to the football players—for a while, anyway.

For example, I know of two or three stars now under contract to the new league who in addition to healthy bonuses are to get $10,000 a year. And Paul Brown, the ex-Ohio State coach now with Cleveland, has a long-time contract at $25,000 a year. But Paul is a coach, not a competitor. There will be no pro football player making one-fourth of what Byron Nelson gets.

In the two major baseball leagues the average pay is from $7,000 to $8,000. So far as the stars go there will be a big jump next spring when Greenberg, DiMaggio, Gordon, Dickcay, Wakefield and a few others will get from $20,000 to $55,000. Big league payrolls will be far different in 1946 than they were in 1945 where all attendance records were broken with rather cheap casts.

The Big Fight

There will be one major exception as far as pay checks go. This takes in Joe Louis and Billy Conn. Louis knocks over 37½ per cent of something better than a million dollar gate, including all the side lines. The Louis share will pass the $500,000 mark but when the keen, eager and alert tax collectors get after him, this amount will drop to less than $50,000.

Conn is supposed to get 12½ per cent of this all-time record gate, but he will do better than all right. Conn will at least move up into the $200,000 bracket. If the returns from motion pictures and television reach the figure many think they will, these amounts will be heavily increased.

But what good will that do when one collides with an 80 or possibly 90 per cent tax assessment? Louis is supposed to owe the government $117,000 for back taxes, not including a substantial amount he also owes Mike Jacobs. Joe will be lucky if he ever gets even again. Conn also owes quite a chunk, and will also be struggling to get even and square with the world.

So don't waste too much envy on Louis and Conn.

Some Jockeys Get Rich

When it comes down to the big money-makers we still have to figure in jockeys such as Eddie Arcaro and Ted Atkinson, to mention only a pair. Both must have passed the $75,000 mark this year. There are others who are beyond the $40,000 mark with their 10 per cent from big stakes. And what about Arnold Kirkland, the contract rider for the Maine Chance stable with more than $550,000 piled up in purses?

They'll tell you the baseball player lasts longest in professional sport but when I think of Ken Strong, Arnold Herber and Mel Hein with their total of 57 years in football—or Sammy Baugh and Don Hutson and others who have been doing well enough after 10 or 12 years, I begin to wonder.

Sarazen Lasted 20 Years

Pop Anson, Honus Wagner, Ty Cobb, Larry Lajoie and a few old-time stars lasted from 20 to 24 years. But these are the exceptions. Gene Sarazen has carried on as a winning golfer for over 20 years. Gene is also an exception. There have been few to match Hagen and Sarazen. Maybe Byron Nelson and one or two others will. But in the meanwhile, Nelson, taking down from $50,000 to $60,000 a year, doesn't need all that extra time.

Hormone Treatment Of Potatoes Advised

Storage Application Retards Sprout Growth

The plant hormone, methyl ester of alpha-naphthalenacetic acid, was found by Thomas and Riker, University of Wisconsin, to be effective to keep potatoes from sprouting in storage, even at ordinary room temperatures.

The chemical can be employed successfully in liquids, dusts or shredded paper distributed among the tubers. The dust and shredded methods gave the best results.

Treatment should be made in the spring shortly before the advent of warm weather, before the tubers break dormancy and begin to sprout. This retarding of the sprouts will extend the local selling season of potatoes, even after the spring weather has warmed the storage bins.

Potatoes free from late blight, soft rot, Fusaria and other types of rot organisms only should be selected for hormone treatment. The amount of the chemical to be used should be approximately 1.35 grams of the methyl ester of alpha-naphthalenacetic acid per bushel of tubers.

Handy Milk Stool Leather Belt

Made from 2 by 4's and equipped with leather belt that keeps the stool in place, this type of stool proves of special value to strippers. The stool is always in place and needs no handling once it is adjusted. This results in a decided sanitary advantage.

Improved Equipment Pest Control

Cow taking self-treatment with cattle pest control machine. This can be stationary or movable.

The cattle pest control, manufactured by the Automatic Equipment Manufacturing company of Pender, Neb., used for the control of grubs, lice, flies, ticks, mange and other vermin. Medicated dip oil or powder is released upon the animal by a patented dispenser and rubbed into the hair and hide by the user.

Feed Salt to Hogs

Experiments conducted at Purdue university proved definitely that for economical reasons, hogs should never be allowed to go hungry for salt. Block or loose salt or a simple mineral mixture should be provided.

The experiments showed that hogs supplied with a plentiful amount of salt averaged 250 pounds after 85 days, while those without salt only averaged 174 pounds in that time. The feeding of one pound of salt saved $6.37 in feed.

Notes of a Newspaper Man:

Some of the Broadway brain-trusters were "solving" the world's problems. The gab switched to the re-emergence of Joe Stalin.

"I don't get it," said one. "So-called reliable sources reported Joe was very sick—some said dying or dead. Now he turns up, and they say he's in the best of health and was merely enjoying a vacation."

"Oh, I dunno," observed another Thinker. "I hear Stalin is far from well—and right now is suffering from a terrific gripe."

"Yeh-yeh," interrupted a third who made the most sense. "The same terrific grip he's always had on everything."

Mayor O'Dwyer's two-cent sales-tax plan to help finance the subway recalls the time Jimmy Walker was a State Senator and the legislature at Albany was arguing a raise in subway tariff. . . . State Senator Nichol was against raising the fare. "Don't you think," orated Senator Nichol, "that the people of New York City go too far for a nickel?" Walker's retort: "You've gone pretty far—for a Nichol!"

The elder Edison hated wearing a dress suit. Mrs. Edison, however, talked him into putting one on for a reception. . . . The affair was stuffy and Edison squirmed in discomfort. . . . He finally told Mrs. Edison he was going home. "I can't stand this doggone straitjacket!" he groaned as he left.

At home, to make sure the soup-and-fish apparel would never bother him again, Edison took hammer and nails and nailed the suit to the wall. . . . "There," he said when finished, "I hope you suffer as much as I did!"

It Could Happen: A group of brass hats gathered to consider the formation of a Society for American Participation in World War III and IV. . . . The first speaker keynoted the meeting by declaring: "Regardless of the so-called agreements made by the Big Three, we know sooner or later we will have to fight another war! We will have to fight Russia over many things—or Britain over markets! And—"

From the audience a voice hesitantly inquired: "But, gentlemen, isn't there something we can do to PREVENT another war?"

"What!" roared the chairman. "Throw that un-American out!"

The mail brought this unsigned contrib. A poet was irked by a pest who told him he could spend his time more usefully cooking. . . . The poet ignored him. . . . "Well," continued the bore, "don't you think a cook is more important than a poet?"

The poet pondered and then said: "I'm sure there isn't a dog in town who wouldn't agree with you."

"Well, it looks like the honeymoon between Truman and Congress is over."

"Yeah, now he has good reason for going home to mother."

Sounds in the Night: At the Diamond Horseshoe: "Relax, dearie, or that halo will choke you to death."

. . . At the Embassy: "They wrote a song about her, 'O, What a Beautiful Moron!' . . . At the Zanzibar: "Dull? They named a butter-knife after him!" . . . At Versailles: "He'll do anything for me, and I for him. But I'm running out of right arms!"

. . . At the Golden Fiddle: "George Jean Nathan doesn't dislike actors. Only those he sees in shows." . . . At Ciro's: "She was in a terrible accident. She was having her face lifted and the derrick broke."

Wilson Mizner's balm to newcomers in the theater: "Remember this—most of the time the stumbling blocks which get in your way—will merely be the dust you leave behind tomorrow."

Faces About Town: Elliott Roosevelt being mobbed by admirers while leaving the "Show Boat" premiere at the Ziegfeld Theater. . . . James Stewart introducing Marie McDonald to Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. . . . George Jean Nathan with a padre in the Cub Room of the Stork. Reforming? . . . Former Sec'y of War Henry Stimson unrecognized by the Pierre passersby. . . . Damon Runyon putting down candidates for a column about celebs who talk about themselves. . . . Marion Murray, whose betrothal to a General was cancelled suddenly, trying to be gay about it. . . . Candy Jones, who has a cold, at the Zanzibar ringside, wearing (among other things) a baby's teething ring, the inscription on which reads: "Don't Kiss Me!"

Sallies in Our Alley: A ham actress, famed for her conceit, visited the Hartmans at the Waldorf. . . . "I had a big season in Hollywood," she boasted, "including three terrific scenes with Errol Flynn." . . . "Yeh," quipped Grace Hartman, "he fights with everybody." . . . Oz Nelson says with many people marriage is a gamble, but with Hank Greenberg it's a Gimbel. . . . Alan Gale tells of the big advertising agency exec who died and at his funeral "everybody sang commercials!"

Household Hints

To keep suede or kid gloves in good condition in a damp climate, put them in a dry mason jar and seal.

Look over your clothing, bedding, towels and linens regularly with an eye to needed mending. If you catch breaks early you'll cut down a lot on mending time. Damaged places can be mended more easily and will show less.

Soak such things as greasy overalls in a good soap solution and thereby make it easier for the washer to do its job.

If pickles are to be used as a garnish for meats or salads, try this way of cutting: Slice in fine strips lengthwise down to the stem, and then spread like a fan.

Put ground allspice, cloves, mace and nutmeg in shakers on the table and let the folks choose their own spices on their desserts.

Roll crocheted and knitted wearing apparel about discarded mailing tubes. This method keeps garments in better condition for wearing than folding.

"I WAS A VICTIM OF CONSTIPATION!"

"Found Relief In Famous Breakfast Food,"
User Writes

Suffer from constipation? Then read this unsolicited letter!

"I was a victim of constipation for many years, trying all sorts of medicinal remedies, but to no avail. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, and after the first trial experienced relief. I now eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day as part of my regular diet. The sufferings from constipation have vanished and I am overjoyed at feeling like a new person at the age of 26. I am passing this news along so that others who are suffering may find relief." Mrs. Beatrice Meyer, 261 Hawthorne Ave., Newark, N. J.

You, too, may never need another harsh laxative, if your constipation is due to lack of bulk in the diet. Just eat a dish of delicious KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day, and drink plenty of water. If not satisfied after a 10-day trial, send empty carton to Kellogg's of Battle Creek—and get double your money back! ALL-BRAN is not a purgative. It's a wholesome food made from the vital outer layers of wheat. It provides gentle-acting bulk, which helps promote normal laxation. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. It's made by Kellogg's of Battle Creek and Omaha.

TINLEY LEGION AUX. SPONSOR UNIQUE CAKE WALK

Bring your Valentine to the Cake Walk which is being given by the ladies of the Tinley Park American Legion Auxiliary, Saturday, February 9, 1946 at the Village hall in Tinley Park. There will be no admission charge. There will be favors, fun and friendship in abundance. Music of the best kind from eight until your feet give out. Then, while you rest, cake and coffee to give you a fresh start.

The proceeds from this Cake Walk will be used toward the purchase of a projector and microfilmed books to be used in the veterans hospitals. These projectors are so arranged that a flick of a switch resting on the boys chest shows a page of the book on the ceiling above his head. Another button shows the next page and the third button shuts off the projector. Over 600 books have been filmed to date and each projector is equipped with thirty to forty of these books. Many hours of pleasure are thus afforded to these boys. Some of them are completely incased in casts and cannot even turn their heads; many have no hands or arms to turn the pages.

Surely it is not necessary to impress you with the many stories reaching each of us daily, telling us the continued sacrifice these boys are making. Here is your chance for real fun and the opportunity to do your own service work. We are looking forward to seeing you at the Village hall, Saturday, Feb. 9, 1946 at 8 pm.
